

BitCoin Purchase Policy

1. We accept BTC as payment for transactional purposes ONLY: We are not a brokerage, and we do not engage in trading BTC under the guise of transactions. Attempts to “game” BTC volatility by asking us for an invoice and then waiting for a temporary spike in BTC value are TRADING, not transacting. (It’s also very rude.)
2. We will prepare an invoice for the items you asked to purchase, plus shipping. We will send that invoice via e-mail or other electronic message system, along with a wallet address (and/or QR code) to which you can send BTC for payment. Once payment is received, we will package your order or authorize the factory to ship it to you.
3. Wallet addresses on such invoices will remain valid for 48 hours after the invoice is sent. Once the 48 hour window passes, we will not accept payment to the wallet, and will require the transaction to be conducted in USD rather than BTC.
4. These policies exist for conformity with strict AML (anti money laundering) protocols, and to insure we are not functioning as a “brokerage” or trading house for people trying to conceal crypto trading within transactions for goods.